Dutch Delftware 1620-1859

Van Jan Daniel Dam : Dutch Delftware 1620-1859 before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Dutch Delftware 1620-1859:

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Great images and info.By Cynthia J. VetranoI found this book to be very informative with regard to the factories and owners of the 16-1700's. It gave a time-table of important events and the changing of hands at the different factories over the years as well as great images of the important pieces and styles of Delft over time. When items began to be marked and marks used at different times within the factories is also mentioned.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. okBy mariegood

Delftware has been produced for more than two hundred years in thirty different factories specialized in this type of earthenware. During this time, tens of thousands of men and women have worked in Delft to create a product with a truly European look. The five sections in this publication tell about the potteries, the successes and disappointments of the people who worked in them and the beautiful decorated earthenware itself. Sources for the 150 colour illustrations include the Amsterdam Rijksmuseum's collection of Delftware, one of the Netherlands' most beautiful collections.
