Ventura (CA) (Postcard History Series)

Glenda J. Jackson : Ventura (CA) (Postcard History Series) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Ventura (CA) (Postcard History Series):

1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. I love this bookBy D. C. JohnsonI bought this book for myself because I grew up in Ventura and I miss it so much. I like it so much, I think I'll give it to my dad. I think he would really like it too.1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. the book binding is bad. the pages are falling outBy Roseythe book binding is bad. the pages are falling out . I like the content ,but I have to be careful the pages don't all fall out.I was born and lived many years in Oxnard. There was a cattle feed yard west of Ventura somewhere near the river on the south side of the highway .Had the name of two persons .I was hoping the book had some information on them. Alas ,no luck. I do enjoy your books. Manuel F Oliveiral of 1 people found the following review helpful.

History of VenturaBy star-finderThis is basically a photographic history of Ventura, CA. in the early 1900. Very interesting and informative. The book is well done and I would recommend it for anyone interested in the history of this area. A great book. .. Enjoy...

The city of Ventura traces its heritage back to the founding of Mission San Buenaventura in March 1782. The intervening eras have seen cattle drives down Main Street, revival tents in the marshy area now known as Pierpont, and the days when the Ventura trolley was the quickest way around town. The attractive images in this postcard tour through bygone times also include the stately Schiappapietra Mansion on Santa Clara Street, which was sadly torn down in the mid-1950s. The county seat of Ventura County, the city of Ventura retains a picture-postcard ambiance, and these images illustrate how that charm always has been a part of Ventura heritage.

About the AuthorIn this new retrospective, author Glenda J. Jackson has compiled more than 200 postcards to chronicle the city's history. A resident of Ventura County since 1969, Jackson has written for numerous periodicals on antiques. She lectures on vintage clothing and Victorian etiquette and has been a City of Ventura historical tour guide since 1997. Her extensive collection of Ventura memorabilia includes early newspapers, brochures, maps, photographs, and other publications.
