More of a catalog of possibilitiesBy Bernie (xyzzy)This book contains many popular examples of Weaving of the Southwest". It is not a how-to in the sense of how to make the weavings as a collection of weavings showing what can be done or has been made, who made them and a little about each design. This book includes not just rugs but clothing also.On picture (reference 212) you can see a loom that looks like it was made from available materials such as 4" water pipes, 2 by, and 4 by 4 planks. It is or by this time was viewable in the Navaho

Hubble Trading Post. Warping All by Yourself

This book presents important information on Pueblo, Navajo, Rio Grande, and Northern Mexican weaving styles of the Southwestern U. S. region. Traditional and modern styles of blankets, clothing, and rugs are identified and explained in detail, with brief accounts of some of the old trading posts that sold them. Today, Navajo weaving remains an important domestic craft that is intimately linked with what it means to be a traditional Navajo woman.

This new edition of the classic book includes up-to-date advances in the materials and a trend that increasingly includes men as weavers. The evolving weaving styles are explained, including a caution for identifying foreign copies. New marketing ideas are also discussed. All weavers, collectors, dealers, and historians will welcome this new edition.

About the Author Marian Rodee was the Curator of Collections at the Maxwell Museum of Anthropology, University of New Mexico in Albuquerque. She has worked closely with contemporary weavers.
