

#6056302 in Books 2006-11-03 2006-11-03Original language:English 9.00 x .10 x 6.00l, #File Name:

140692057640 pages | File size: 73.Mb

Fabian Franklin

*ePub | DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

[Ebook free] What Prohibition Has Done to America

What Prohibition Has Done to America

Fabian Franklin : What Prohibition Has Done to America before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised What Prohibition Has Done to America:

0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Tough read.By CabriodadReading this book is like reading Oliver Wendell Holmes discuss the history of common law. It's amazing how our language and writing style has changed in the last eighty years.2 of 8 people found the following review helpful. This book is opinionBy CustomerI am not for or against drinking but the author of this book comes across as a drunk that is against prohibition. Aside from repeatedly stating that it stripped our rights to drink it really didn't say anything. Glad it was free

The Making of the Modern Law: Legal Treatises, 1800-1926 includes over 20,000 analytical, theoretical and practical works on American and British Law. It includes the writings of major legal theorists, including Sir Edward Coke, Sir William Blackstone, James Fitzjames Stephen, Frederic William Maitland, John Marshall, Joseph Story, Oliver Wendell Holmes, Jr. and Roscoe Pound, among others. Legal Treatises includes casebooks, local practice manuals, form books, works for lay readers, pamphlets, letters, speeches and other works of the most influential writers of their time. It is of great value to researchers of domestic and international law, government and politics, legal history, business and economics, criminology and much more.++++The below data was compiled from various identification fields in the bibliographic record of this title. This data is provided as an additional tool in helping to insure edition identification:++++Wesleyan University Law LibraryCTRG00-B1705New York : Harcourt, Brace, [c1922]. iv, 129 p. ; 20 cm

About the AuthorFabian Franklin (1853-1939) was born in Hungary January 18, 1853, and immigrated with his family to the United States in 1855, settling in Philadelphia, and moving in 1861 to Washington, D.C. He graduated from Columbian College in 1869, and received an honorary Doctor of Laws from Columbian University in 1904. He first trained to become a civil engineer but later entered Johns Hopkins University and earned a Ph.D. in mathematics (1880). He married Christine Ladd, a professor of psychology and logic at Columbia University, in 1882. He remained at Johns Hopkins teaching mathematics from 1879-95, then left to become editor with the Baltimore News, where he remained until 1908. He left that position to become associate editor of the New York Evening Post, where he remained until 1917. Franklin developed a firm opposition to radical politics, and to socialism, in particular. During the First World War he founded a new periodical, called The , which merged in 1922 with another paper called The Independent. He wrote a number of books in addition to Plain Talks On Economics. He died January 9, 1939.